St. George's Episcopal Church announces the Play On at St. George's Series

Musicians of the Nashville Symphony will perform a series of chamber concerts at St. George's as a part of the In Excelsis Concert Series

Nashville, Tenn. – The Music Ministries Department of St. George's Episcopal Church has announced Play On at St. George's featuring the Musicians of the Nashville Symphony as a new addition to their established In Excelsis Concert Series. These monthly live concerts will be streamed online to the community for free, with a limited in-person audience in attendance at St. George's.

The cancellation of the Nashville Symphony's 2020-2021 season due to the COVID-19 pandemic is not only difficult news for the musicians, but also for the supporters of the Symphony and all music lovers in Nashville. With the addition of Play On at St. George's to the In Excelsis Concert Series, the Friends of Music Committee at St. George's plans to continue their mission of offering high-quality music to the community, while also providing financial support to the Musicians of the Nashville Symphony who are currently furloughed due to the pandemic. In addition to hosting these performances and contributing financial support to all furloughed members of the Musicians of the Nashville Symphony, St. George's will highlight the fundraising platform for the musicians where audience members can contribute directly.

"St. George's has a reputation for excellent music and worship events, as well as strong outreach in the community," says Dr. Woosug Kang, Director of Music Ministries. "This new series is an indication of our desire to enrich lives through music, support local artists, and be contributing members of our community."

The first performance, featuring works by Bach, Dvorak, and Handel-Halvorsen, is on Saturday, September 19, at 7:30pm. To watch this concert, or for more information about Play On at St. George's and how to support the musicians of the Nashville Symphony, visit stgeorgesnashville.org/inexcelsis.

St. George's mission is to receive, live, and share the abundant life of Jesus Christ. Their varied and rich musical tradition steeped in Anglican custom is well-known for its dedication to beauty and excellence. Committed to high-caliber offerings, the In Excelsis Concert Series provides diverse, unique, and sacred musical listening opportunities to the Nashville community.
